- Exceptions to the basic policy are so rare as to be almost non-existent. I do think this is the best decision.
- My experience would cause me to believe that if you went to the next level up you would probably get the same response; however, you do have the right of appeal to the DDCI, to whom authority to waive the mandatory retirement age has been delegated.

FROM:
Executive Director

SUBJECT: Request for Extension

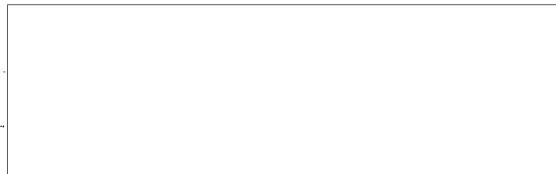

REFERENCE: Your Memorandum dated 14 March 1983, Subject:
Two Months Extension of Mandatory Retirement

1. This is in response to your request for a two month extension of service either by an extension of your mandatory retirement date or by a two month contract.

2. While I commend you for your dedicated interest in ensuring that Field Stations are properly audited, we must, in the end, depend on the judgement of senior managers on whether the services of a particular individual are needed in order to fulfill program responsibilities. I have discussed your request with the Inspector General who also does not support extension of your service beyond your scheduled mandatory retirement date.

3. I trust you will understand why in cases like this we must defer to and depend on the judgement of the senior official involved.

The Agency is on very firm legal ground here. I would note, however, that authority to waive the mandatory retirement age has been delegated by the DCI to the DDCI. Accordingly, I would suggest a final paragraph in the attached letter to [redacted] indicating that if he is still unsatisfied he might request the DDCI, who has the ultimate authority to grant extensions beyond the scheduled mandatory date, to review his case.
